

IN MEMORIAM

Early Sunday Morning Bedford's "Grand Old Man,"

HON. WILLIAM P. SCHELL,

Rich in Years and Honored and Respected, Was Called From Time to Eternity.

WILLIAM P. SCHELL

About one o'clock Sunday morning Hon. William P. Schell, the oldest member of the Bedford Bar, the oldest Ex-Speaker of the House of Representatives, Ex-Auditor General of Pennsylvania, and one of the mainstays of men, died at his home here as the result of a general breakdown.

Hon. William P. Schell was born in Schellsburg, February 13, 1822. His ancestors emigrated from the Palatinate between the years 1727 and 1732 and settled in Philadelphia County, now Montgomery. Schellsburg is named from the Schell family, the founder of it being Mr. Schell's grandfather, John Schell, a stalwart man who came from Montgomery County to seek his fortune in the year 1800. Coming to Bedford County he located on the ground now known as Schellsburg, which town he laid out.

After having been grounded in the rudiments of a good classical education Mr. Schell entered Marshall College, which was then situated at Mercersburg, but which has since been removed to Lancaster and incorporated with Franklin College, and graduated there in 1843. Afterward he studied law with Maj. Samuel M. Barclay, one of the distinguished lawyers of Western Pennsylvania at that time, and was admitted to the Bedford bar in 1845. In 1851 he was elected District Attorney of Fulton County, which office he filled with ability until 1853, when he resigned to take his seat in the General Assembly of Pennsylvania as a representative from the Counties of Bedford, Fulton and Cambria. In 1853 he was chosen Speaker of the House of Representatives and served with distinction in that position. During the years 1858, '59 and '60 he represented the Counties of Bedford, Somerset and Huntingdon in the State Senate. In the years 1877 and '78 he again served as a Representative of his native county. In 1877 he was elected Auditor General of the state and resigned as a member of the Legislature to enter upon the duties of the Auditor General's office.

Mr. Schell was married to Miss Etie Reamer of Bedford, who died many years ago. He is survived by two sons and one daughter, William P. of Pittsburgh, Oswald H. of Germantown and Miss Nannie who lived here with her father. The funeral services were held in the Presbyterian Church Tuesday afternoon and were conducted by his pastor, Rev. H. B. Townsend, the service, at the request of the deceased, being very simple. The remains were carried to their final resting place by men of his choice, Frank Fletcher, Moses Lippel, W. L. Cooper, John H. Clark, John H. Jordan, Humphrey D. Tate. The honorary pall-bearers were Capt. Eli Eichelberger, Capt. T. H. Lyons, James A. Sill and S. A. Van Ormer. Among the many friends of The Gazette none were more interested in its welfare than Mr. Schell, and its files contain many pages from his pen, which articles, as a whole, make up a complete and authentic history of Bedford County. He was the author of The Annals of Bedford County, an historical work prepared for Bedford's Old Home Week.

At a meeting of the local Bar Association the following members testified to his worth as a statesman, a lawyer and a man: J. H. Jordan, H. D. Tate, M. A. Points, A. L. Little, F. E. Colvin and E. M. Pennell. The report of the committee on resolutions was read by S. H. Sell.

Resolutions by the Bedford Bar
The committee appointed by the Bedford Bar at a meeting held on Monday, November 16, 1908, to prepare and report a memorial of Hon. William P. Schell, who was the oldest and one of its most respected members, who died on the 15th instant, at the advanced age of 86 years, eight months and 27 days, beg leave to submit the following, to wit:

The Grim Reaper, Death, has again invaded our ranks and has called into the Silent Death Chamber one of our number who was, during his early manhood and through the period of his later active life, one of Bedford County's pioneers in the development of our natural resources.

Hon. William P. Schell was admitted to the Bedford Bar on October 8, 1845, and later removed to Fulton County, after it had been formed from part of Bedford, and was elected its first District Attorney in 1850. He was a member of the House of Representatives of Pennsylvania from Bedford County in the sessions of 1852, 1853, 1877 and 1878, and in the session of 1853 was Speaker of the House. He was a member of the State Senate from 1858 to 1860, and was Auditor General of the State of Pennsylvania from May 6, 1878, to May of 1881, all of which offices he filled with marked ability, and was chiefly, while holding the last named office, instrumental in compelling payment of taxes by corporations into the state treasury, which is today its chief source of revenue.

He was a philanthropic man and at times was possessed of considerable wealth which was not, however, his main ambition; he labored for the welfare and best interests of his native County of Bedford and of the state. During the later years of his life he devoted a great deal of his time to compiling and publishing historical data relating to the early history of Bedford County and his contributions along this line are accurate and invaluable.

As a lawyer he was thoroughly grounded in the fundamentals of the law. He had a logical mind and critical acumen; he had clear comprehension of legal principles and was able to distinguish between the false and the true; he was a forceful speaker, cogent in his reasoning, and having a high conception of what constituted equity, and his arguments forced conviction alike on court and jury. He sedulously avoided sophistry and anything that savored of insincerity.

His professional ideals were of a lofty character, which, together with his uniform courtesy, secured to him the highest consideration from both Bench and Bar. His private life was most praiseworthy and his pure Christian character, which was manifest in his every act and walk in life, endeared him to his fellowmen and made him an example well worthy of emulation.

At a ripe old age, honored and beloved by all who knew him, he has passed to the reward that remains in store for "the pure in heart."

Therefore, be it resolved

1. That as a mark of regard for him we attend his funeral in a body.
2. That a committee of three be appointed by the chair to present a copy of the foregoing preamble and resolutions to the bereaved family of the deceased, and to submit them to the courts of this county and request that they be entered upon the Common Pleas Docket.

Simon H. Sell,
E. M. Pennell,
M. A. Points,
John H. Jordan,
J. H. Longenecker.
Committee.

William P. Schell

Departed this life yesterday at Bedford, William P. Schell, whose career as a representative of the public life of the state was notable as characteristic of the better elements of legislation and administration. Speaker of the State House of Representatives in 1853, State Senator from 1878 until 1881, he left an untarnished record and retired from office with the confidence and respect of the public. As a local historian in later years Mr. Schell added much to the work of his predecessors in that field. He was a man of genial temperament, loyal and devoted in his friendships, unswerving in his support of any cause he espoused, and therefore esteemed and beloved by all who knew him.

"Green be the turf above thee,
Friend of my early days;
None knew thee but to love thee,
None named thee but to praise."

A NEW INDUSTRY

Bedford Ice and Cold Storage Company Organized.

At a meeting of the stockholders of a proposed ice manufacturing and cold storage company held Wednesday evening an organization was effected by the selection of a board of directors and the election of officers. The board of directors consists of Jo. W. Tate, L. D. Blackweider, Patrick Hughes, A. B. Egolf, Corlie H. Smith, Oscar D. Doty, Ed. Dill, Ed. D. Heckerman and S. A. Van Ormer. Following are the officers: President, Jo. W. Tate; Vice President, Corlie H. Smith; Secretary, S. A. Van Ormer; Treasurer, Patrick Hughes; Solicitor, B. F. Madore, Esq.

This industry will prove a benefit to the town and to the county. It will furnish ice that is manufactured from filtered and distilled water and is, therefore, absolutely pure, to Bedford and other towns of the county. But the greatest benefit to the county will perhaps be derived from the cold storage end which will be ample to store eggs, apples and such other articles as it may be desirable or profitable to place in storage.

An order for the machinery of a ten ton plant will be placed during this week, conditioned only on the securing of a charter, of which there is no doubt, and a suitable building will either be procured or erected during the winter, so that customers may be supplied during the spring months.

The par value of the stock is $50 and a sufficient amount has been subscribed to make it a go, though there is yet stock for sale.

By the erection of this plant the growing apple industry of the county may be taken care of more advantageously. The dealers in fruits and green groceries will be enabled to purchase in larger quantities and, therefore, to better advantage.

Wanted to See the World

Samuel and William Miller, aged 14 and 15 years, sons of Dennis Miller, a prominent resident of Hyndman, were picked up by the Cumberland police Monday morning, charged with being runaways. The boys left their home in Hyndman Sunday morning, trudged through the snow over the mountains to Mt. Savage, where they spent the night in the C. & P. station. They walked to Cumberland and went to the home of a relative, who turned them over to the police. Both boys are very small for their age but took their arrest philosophically. Their parents were communicated with on the telephone and the youngsters were sent home.

Whetstone-Whipp

John Merle Whetstone of Friend's Cove and Miss Winifred Whipp, daughter of W. E. Whipp residing near Bedford, were united in marriage at Cumberland last Saturday. The groom is a son of John S. Whetstone of Ottotown and had been, until recently, connected with the International Correspondence School, Scranton. His bride is one of the county's popular young teachers and on Monday resumed her duties at the Hartley school at Willow Grove. The Gazette joins the congratulations.

ATLANTIC FLEET

Receiving Royal Welcome on Trip Around the World.

PRIVATE WM. O. BRUNER

Gives Interesting Account of Life of Uncle Sam's Marines—Is Enjoying the Trip.

Auckland, New Zealand, August 9, 1908.

Editor Gazette,

Dear Sir:—I am not yet lost at sea, as you may think at not hearing from me, but have put off writing to everybody, as my time is now all taken up with drills. Every one is drilling in signal and battery, getting ready for our target practice at Manila.

With the starting of the fleet from San Francisco our homeward bound trip will be a distance of 23,000 miles. We left California at 2:30 p. m. The weather was very cool but after leaving the Golden Gate a fine breeze came up, and days passed quickly until the cry "land, ho! land, ho!" was heard over the ship. Immediately all hands were on deck to see land after being at sea for nine days, and land it was, the good old United States' possession, the Hawaiian Islands. At 7 a. m. we passed the highest volcano in the world. At 8 a. m. the 3rd division of the fleet left for Lahaina, Maui Island, to coal; the rest of the fleet went direct to Honolulu to coal; we parted at the famous Luper Island. In the 3rd division the following ships can be seen: Louisiana Flagship, Missouri, Virginia and Ohio. While we were at Lahaina the natives donated us load after load of fruit of all kinds, especially pineapples.

After coaling, which was very hard work on account of the heat and the amount we put on—1,850 tons—(we started to coal at 8 p. m. Saturday and finished Sunday night at 7) and between the coal dust and the sweat you can imagine our looks. The other three ships in our division left at 4 p. m. Sunday for Honolulu, and we were left to clean up our ship before we put in an appearance at that city. We got cleaned up by Monday and steamed to anchorage at 6 a. m. At 9 a. m. who comes aboard but a friend of mine who visited Bedford in 1905. When the officer of the deck sent for me I was still out of uniform of the day so I made a "Presto Change" and received him. I did not know him at first but he recalled my face and said "Do you remember Clifton Tracy, who visited your grandmother, Mrs. A. M. Kean?" I was glad he hunted me up for he certainly showed me all around. I got a 48-hour liberty and he and I and our marine lieutenant took a trip to the Pali, where the great Kahaimaha drove all the natives when he conquered the island. We laid on our stomachs and looked straight down the side, 1,200 feet. It certainly was a great sight. We also visited the Japanese settlement, then out to the Punch Bowl, the crater of an old volcano which was very active in 1889 but now seems quite dead. I had a great time trying the different fruits but when I got a bite of an Alligator pear I played quits. The principal fruit here is Bread Fruit. I returned to the ship after bidding my many newly-made friends farewell.

On Wednesday, July 22, at 6 p. m. we got under way for our longest run—from Honolulu to Auckland, New Zealand, taking 16 days. The sea was very calm up until we passed the Fiji Islands, then we crossed the Equator again, making it my third time. We did not initiate but the two new ships were visited by Neptune's Rex—the Nebraska and Wisconsin. Everything went well until the morning of the 6th of August, when the signal came from the flagship to secure ships for typhoon storms. We did, and we got it. Ven-

RATIONAL CURE FOR ECZEMA

No More Dosing of the Stomach—Cure the Skin Through the Skin.

When you have a scratch on your hand you wash it out and cleanse it and then the skin cures itself. You do not take blood medicine to cure a festering wound.

The best skin specialists today are agreed that the only way to cure the skin is through the skin.

The fact that eczema is a skin disease and not a blood disease is evident from statistics which show that nearly all eczema sufferers are perfectly healthy in all other ways except as to their skin. If the eczema patients were really suffering from an inward malady, the entire body and not only the skin would be diseased. You can prove immediately the relief of a true skin cure by using oil of wintergreen as compounded in D. D. D. Prescription.

This liquid attacks the disease germs, numbing them while building up the healthy tissue of the skin. We have now handled this meritorious and thoroughly scientific remedy for so long and have seen its reliable result so many times that we freely express our confidence. P. W. Jordan, Bedford, Pa.

tilators blew off the quarter decks, life boats were blown away, the waves came dashing up over the forward turret. The Marine sentries on the life-buoys were taken inside and the doors closed amidship so as to help break the heavy ground swells. The wind blew at very near hurricane speed and the tide was also against us. The first to break down and fall out of line was the Ohio, then the Virginia and several others, but they returned to position in a short time. The old Missouri certainly does some rolling and pitching, but she never flies her pennant out of position.

Sunday morning at 9 o'clock we steamed to anchorage at Auckland, N. Z., and all day we did nothing but look at the city from our ships. When reveille sounded Monday all special and first-class men put their clean uniforms on and prepared to have a great time among the English, and real they were for there was nothing we wanted that we didn't get. Their money is very simple, it runs in pence, shillings, crowns and pounds. The fleet is to be paid this month in English money. The fireworks Wednesday night were the prettiest I have seen on our cruise. I took in one of the Tram trips to Ellerslie, where New Zealand's largest race course is. On Thursday a young man was killed in the engine room and I was one of the twelve detailed to fire the salute. We went to the cemetery in carriages, the distance was 11 miles, and when we came back all hands turned to and coaled ship. We took on 1,400 tons and got under way for Sydney, Australia, Saturday at 8 a. m.

On our way we encountered rough weather, accompanied by water spouts or typhoonic storms. Nearly all hands were sick. We arrived in Sydney on August 20 and received the program of festivities which I enclose. On August 29 we arrived at Melbourne and received another royal welcome. We will parade here Monday and there will be a general review of English, Australian and American troops on Thursday. On Saturday we sail for Albany, Australia, to coal for a 14-day run to Manila. I will close this letter and write again soon.

Sincerely yours,

IS THIS A SQUARE DEAL?

F. W. Jordan, the Druggist, will Give You Your Money Back if MI-O-NA Does Not Cure Dyspepsia.

F. W. Jordan makes this square deal offer because he is authorized to do so by the makers of Mi-o-na tablets, and he is willing to have this statement appear in The Gazette because he knows the offer is genuine. And while it may be that there are about 8 cases in 100 that are too far gone for Mi-o-na to cure, we are willing and ready to take all the chances, and if Mi-o-na does not cure, any dyspeptic can have his money back.

Even with this liberal offer, F. W. Jordan will not have to return but a very small percentage, because the 8 incurable dyspeptics that they will once again look upon the sunny side of life, and will continue to use Mi-o-na.

Now, reader, you may say how can the makers of Mi-o-na make such an offer? How do they know that 92 per cent. of the users will be cured, and that the other 8 per cent., or the incurables, will be relieved?

Why, it's all very simple. We've made this same offer in 1,000 towns before we made it here, and we have figured out the percentages, so that when we make the statement we know it to be absolutely true.

"Mi-o-na tablets are truly great for anyone that has stomach trouble. I cannot praise them too highly for what they have done for me."—Mrs. W. D. Bennett, Bucksport, Me.

The price is only 50 cents a box. 11-20 & 12-4.

SHAKE BOTTLE

Noted Authority Gives a Simple Prescription.

TELLS HOW TO TAKE.

Tells the Readers of This Paper How to Prepare the Mixture at Home and Other Advice.

Now is the time when the doctor gets busy, and the patent medicine manufacturers reap the harvest, unless great care is taken to dress warmly and keep the feet dry. This is the advice of an old eminent authority, who says that Rheumatism and Kidney trouble weather is here, and also tells what to do in case of an attack.

Get from any good prescription pharmacy one-half ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion, one ounce Compound Kargon, three ounces Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla. Mix by shaking in a bottle and take a teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime.

Just try this simple home-made mixture at the first sign of Rheumatism, or if your back aches or you feel that the kidneys are not acting just right. This is said to be a certain remedy for all forms of Rheumatism, which is caused by uric acid in the blood, which the kidneys fail to filter out. Any one can easily prepare this at home and at small cost.

Druggists in this town and vicinity, when shown the prescription, stated that they can either supply these ingredients, or, if our readers prefer, they will compound the mixture for them.

A Handsome Premium Free

The Christian Herald (a weekly visitor to many people in this locality) is this year giving free to every new and renewing subscriber a most attractive gift, which is very appropriately called "The Art Gallery De Luxe." It consists of six famous paintings, superbly reproduced in fourteen colors, aggregating 1,000 square inches. The artist catches the glint of the sunbeams through orchard trees and makes them dance and gleam on canvas. But how can we paint in mere words the beauty of these six exquisite pictures? A handsome premium was never offered by any magazine.

Probably no comment is necessary concerning The Christian Herald, "The Magazine that Fully Satisfies," as only the best in literature and art is presented and every one of its 52 issues, the whole year round, sparkles with gems from cover to cover. The Christian Herald contains 1,200 large pages and 1,000 illustrations yearly—as much as any four $1 magazines.

The subscription price is $1.50 per year, but every new subscriber who sends $1.50 to The Christian Herald, 444 Bible House, New York, will receive The Christian Herald every week from date of order until January 1, 1910, and in addition the incomparable "Art Gallery De Luxe" free.

You must act quickly, as this splendid offer expires December 10, 1908.

Household Notes

To test a nutmeg prick it with a pin. If it is good the oil will instantly spread round the puncture. A little milk added to the water in which muslins and prints are washed will generally prevent their color from running.

New stockings should be washed before they are worn. Washing causes the wool to thicken slightly, and thus increases its wear-resisting qualities.

Stains on brown leather shoes and boots may be removed by an application of methylated spirit, followed by washing with soap and water. Then polish with cream in the usual way.

If fat or milk boil over on the kitchen stove salt thrown on it will keep down the smell. If hot grease be spilled on the table or floor cold water thrown on it will set it and prevent its sinking into the wood.

Bright sunshine will remove scorch which has been made by using an overheated iron.

Never keep pickles or vinegar in any form in glazed ware as the vinegar acts on the glaze and forms a poisonous compound. They may with safety be kept in glass jars or bottles.

The Art of Making Coffee

The first requirement is a clean pot. This should be washed and scalded after each meal.

If it becomes discolored, put a little baking soda in it once a week or so; then fill with cold water and let come to the boiling point.

Take care that the spout and strainer are perfectly clean; always rinse and dry thoroughly and never allow coffee to stand in it.

A coffee pot is always better when new, and for this reason many housekeepers advise buying frequent cheap ones instead of one expensive vessel.

Always buy good coffee; it pays better to spend more for your coffee and use less in quantity.

The time-honored rule for making coffee is a tablespoonful for each person and one for the pot.

Put this amount in your clean pot, pour in a few spoonfuls of cold water to wet it and add a clean, freshly-broken egg-shell.

Then pour on the boiling water and when it comes to the boil take from the fire, give it a shake and stir down the grounds.

Repeat this three times in succession and then stand on the back of the stove to settle and clear; if not clear when ready to serve pour in a tablespoonful of cold water.

GO TO THE RESCUE

Rescue the aching back. If it keeps on aching, trouble comes.

Backache is kidney ache. If you neglect the kidneys' warning, look out for urinary trouble—diabetes.

Mrs. Samuel Wheatstone, living on John St., Bedford, Pa., says: "It is now three years since I was cured by the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. I was feeling very nervous and depressed at the time I began their use, and the pains in my back at times were very severe. Doan's Kidney Pills, which I procured at Irvine's drug store, helped me in every way, the pains ceased and I began getting stronger. Finally the trouble left me entirely and I have not been bothered since. I am glad to acknowledge the benefits derived from the use of Doan's Kidney Pills."

FRIDAY MORNING, NOV. 20, 1908.

WILLIAM P. SCHELL

At an early hour last Sunday morning Hon William P. Schell, having spent more than four score years and six on earth, passed through the thin veil that separates mortals from immortals, men from their God into the presence of his Maker. He had lived a life of usefulness, and his latter days were spent peacefully awaiting the approaching end, soothed by that unflinching hope and trust which earlier sustained him in prosperity and in adversity.

What an influence for good the life of the distinguished statesman! Long he served his county and state, and he closed his political career without a stain upon his life's escutcheon. He never lost an opportunity to say a word or do a deed for the uplifting and betterment of society and for the furthering of the cause of Him whom he so long and so consistently served. In his last public appearance, at the centennial celebration of the laying out of his native town of Schellsburg, the burden of his reply to the address of welcome was an admonition to the young men and women, boys and girls, of the community to "make their records clean." It was on that occasion that he walked with the writer through the avenues of the cemetery where repose the ashes of several generations of the Schell family and where repose many of the friends and associates of his youth and young manhood. He became reminiscent, referring to the piety and devotion of the early fathers, and spoke of the reward that awaits them that endure to the end. The beautiful blending of faith, and hope, and love in his nature touched many lives and made them better. The scroll of his life is rolled together but his memory and his influence will long abide; his record is a proud monument.

THE STATE HIGHWAY

Considerable interest is manifest in this county in the proposed new state highway leading from Philadelphia through the state to Pittsburgh. Several routes will be proposed to the Legislature, among which is the old turnpike leading through Bedford.

In this route's favor are the facts that it is the shortest route that has yet been suggested; the cost of construction would be less per mile than on either of the other routes suggested because of the good condition of the bed of the old pike. It, in part, is a section that does not now have adequate railroad facilities. This route is rich in scenery and in historic incidents.

The statement of Governor Stuart that he will recommend to the Legislature the appropriation of $6,000,000 for a system of state highways is creating much favorable comment. The appropriation of $6,000,000 would remove from the treasury only about one-half of the usual surplus, hence would leave a sum ample to take care of other internal improvements.

OBITUARY

George W. Lybarger

George W. Lybarger died Thursday evening, November 12, at his home near Madley from an attack of typhoid fever, which apparently brought on fatal results to injuries sustained earlier in life and almost forgotten.

No man in the neighborhood in which he lived was more highly esteemed. Quiet and inoffensive, yet companionable, always willing to assist a neighbor to the extent of his ability. He was the youngest of the family of David and Hetty Lybarger, and was married in May to Mrs. Bertie Coughenour (nee Stouffer). Besides his widow he leaves to mourn his death three brothers and four sisters, namely: Mrs. Frank McCoy, L. D., E. E. and J. A. Lybarger, Mrs. W. L. Mickey, Mrs. J. E. Kring and Mrs. George Holler.

He was aged 37 years, three months and two days. He was buried on Sunday in the cemetery at the Lutheran Church at Madley, services being conducted by Rev. Wise of the United Evangelical Church.

Margaret H. Seifert

Margaret Helena, youngest daughter of Jacob J. and Laura (McVicker) Seifert, died at the home of her parents on West Pitt Street at 5 o'clock Sunday morning, November 15, aged 12 years, 10 months and 25 days.

A brother, Heyden, had been ill with diphtheria for several weeks but was convalescent, the little girl being stricken with the dread disease on Tuesday. She was a pupil in the seventh grade and had been regular in attendance until the morning preceding the attack. A bright and attractive child, she was loved by schoolmates and friends. The bereaved family has the sympathy of all.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

Sound Business Sense

A little chap in Philadelphia, whose father is a prominent merchant and, as such, never loses an opportunity to descant upon the virtues of advertising, one day asked his mother:

"Yes," assented the mother; "but you must be very, very quiet."
"All right," said the youngster; "we'll pretend we don't advertise."—December Lippincott's.

SELECTING SEED CORN

Points to Be Considered in Determining

WHICH EARS TO PLANT

Something for Farmers to Consider, That the Best Results May Be Obtained.

The following are the points allowed in a corn judging contest

	Points
Trueness to type	10
Shape of ear	10
Purity of color (grain and cob)	5
Germinating power	20
Tips	5
Butts	5
Uniformity of kernels	5
Shape of kernels	5
Length of ear	5
Circumference of ear	5
Furrows between rows	5
Proportion of corn to cob	10
Space between kernels (tips) at cob	10

Each of these points has a distinct bearing on the total crop of corn and it is intended to discuss this bearing in the articles on the subject, taking in connection with the subject, the writer's observations of the strains of corn now being raised in Bedford County.

Trueness to type. This means trueness to the breed characteristics of the type of corn raised. With but two exceptions, none of the corn exhibited at the County Fair was true to type; it all showed clear evidence of cross-breeding. The exceptions were the Iowa Silver Mine and the Extra Early (8 rowed) corn. The former is a valuable corn where it can be matured; the latter is a good corn of its type but the type is not the best that can be raised under our conditions of soil and climate. It will not shell out as much corn as a corn of equal circumference but having a greater number of rows, nor will it meet the requirements of "proportion of corn to cob."

The main objection to a cross-bred corn is precisely the objection to re-planting corn in case of a short stand. The cross-bred corn represents different parents, having different periods for tasseling and silking, with the result that the silks and pollen do not appear at the proper intervals for proper pollination. One part of the corn will set tassels at a different period from another. The pollen from one kind of corn comes too early for the silks of another kind, and the pollen of the other kind too late for the silks of the first kind. In this way much of the corn is not properly fertilized, or is self-fertilized, a result that would not occur if the corn set its tassels all at practically the same time. From such a state of affairs we get nubbins, soft corn, and ears which, while showing plenty of silk, only show a few scattered grains.

Many plants are intended by nature to fertilize themselves but this is not the case with corn. Cross-fertilization is absolutely necessary to prevent the strain from running down and out. Four generations of self-fertilization (pollination of the silk from the tassel of its own stalk) has been shown, in actual field tests, to entirely destroy the germinating power of corn, and even a single year of self-pollination results in a tremendous falling off of corn and fodder. So, locked up in this requirement of "Trueness to Type" is the ability of the corn to use the ample supply of pollen, because it comes just at the time when it is needed.

Plain language and plain common sense will do more to make bigger yields of corn than all the high-sounding phrases of scientific men. If the man of science could just live on the farm for a few years and understand the farmer as well as he does the theory of farming, he could do a great deal more good with his accurate knowledge because he could find out how to tell it in simple, clear language. And all these scientific "corn-points" are simply applied common sense founded on a study of the habits of the plants.

We have seen, in this article, that cross-bred corn cannot pollinate as well as pure-bred corn. Therefore, it is just good sense to cut out the cross-bred and select, whether from our own crib or some other person's, corn of one kind of grain and cob—corn that shows the same relation on examination of the ears that any man with his eyes wide open would see in the same breed of stock. A yellow dent, uncrossed with red or white, a clean, clear yellow; a white-cap dent that is a straight white cap and not streaked with reds or yellows; a white corn that holds white through every grain.

Get the type you want to use settled, then get the ears that show plainly that they belong to that type; then we are ready to select from among these ears the ones which are going to give us the best results in the field. Not the ones which we hope will give us the best results but which we will know, when we are through with the tests, will give the best results of any of the ears set aside for seed.

Shape of ear, 10 points: The ears should show breeding, that is, be of the type usual in the variety, full and strong in the central portion and not tapering too rapidly towards the tip. The tapering is at the expense of the corn and not at the expense of the cob.

Length of ear, 5 points: Extra long ears almost always run too quickly to a point. They are "bad form." If you want proof of this, take two ears, one holding its thickness well to the tip, and a longer one that tapers; shell both separately and see which yields the most corn. There is no proof so convincing as "seeing it."

Furrows between the rows, 5 points: Where the furrows are wide it is evident that corn is being lost. On the other hand, if the corn is too tightly packed the cob is slow in drying. Very little air space, however,

Absolutely PURE ROYAL BAKING POWDER

The only baking powder made from Royal Grape Cream of Tartar, the officially approved ingredient for a wholesome, high-class powder

There is greater deception in the sale of baking powders than ever before. Closely observe the label and be certain of getting Royal.

is enough to dry the cob. And good, close packing at the crown of the kernel is a clear gain of corn.

Space between tips of kernels, 10 points: The highest feeding value of the kernel is in the tip, which contains nearly all the oil. Also, where the tips of the kernels do not fit tightly together there is a loss, which will affect the "proportion of corn to cob." Further, strong, full tips indicate good constitution, high vitality, and strong germinating power. Shell one row the length of the cob and see if there is space between the tips; the kernels ought to fit snugly together. Lay a few grains flat and see if the tip end of the grain is butt end, or whether the corn runs down to a kind of knife blade formation. Throw out ears whose grains thin at the tip.

Germinating power, 20 points: The full test of germinating power can only be made by using a germinator, but certain tendencies are clearly indicated in the grain itself. A deep germ cell (or heart) and a strong, full tip indicate high germinating power. This germ cell and heart contain a very large proportion of the feeding value of the kernel; the floury and horny parts are of little feeding value, comparatively. That is why mice and squirrels eat out the tip and germ and leave the rest.

So that, locked up in this "germinating power" is also the matter of feeding value. Lay a few kernels flat, cut them lengthwise with a knife, and see how deep and long the oily heart is before the floury part is reached. If you think of changing corn, compare in this way your own seed with the seed you think of changing for, using a number of kernels to get at an average. If the oily heart of either variety shows considerably larger than the other, it is a strong point to consider in making the choice.

Circumference of ear, 5 points: Of course the circumference ought to be proportioned to the length of the ear and ought to be large enough so that, in shelling, the proportion of corn to cob is made. A large circumference with a shallow grain disturbs this proportion.

But, if the proportion of corn to cob is maintained, then the larger the circumference, the more valuable the variety. I have in mind now a corn, the grain of which is 10-16th of an inch in length, ears average over 7½ inches in circumference, and which holds the proper proportions of corn and cob. Another corn I examined lately also holds the proportions but the circumference is only six inches. The average length of ears of both corns is the same. It takes about 135 ears of the smaller corn to shell out a bushel of 56 pounds, and only 90 of the larger corn; in other words, for every bushel of the smaller corn the larger corn has gained a half-bushel, since 135 stalks of the larger (at one ear per stalk) will make 1½ bushels, and 135 of the smaller only one bushel. It is not generally understood that so small a difference in circumference will make so much difference in total yield. The grain on the smaller corn (a white cap dent) is a scant 8-16th inch; on the larger over 10-16th inch; the difference results in a half more corn. That is worth thinking over.

Uniformity of kernels, 5 points: The rows ought to be straight; corn which makes an irregular or shoe-peg growth loses in total weight. And of further importance is the habit of such corn in the planter. Grains carefully graded to size ought to make a 95 per cent record in the planter, but irregular grains will seldom make over 75 per cent record. That is not the fault of the corn planter; it works right when it is treated right.

Tips, 5 points: Ought to be regular, uniform, and proportioned to the body of the ear, rows well carried out, and kernels of nearly the size of the main kernels. Neither long and pointed, nor blunt, flat tips are good.

Butts, 5 points: In highly bred corn the rows will extend clear over the butt, in regular order, and leave a deep hollow when the shank is taken off. Open and swelled butts, depressed and flat butts, with flat kernels, are objectionable.

November 18—George McFarlin sold his property at Ryot and bought Mrs. Margaret Miller's property near Napier. Our teachers appear to be giving good satisfaction as no complaints are heard. But there are entirely too many boys running around hunting when they should be at school. Parents should be cautious about giving children permission to stay out of school. Every day out is a day lost to school work—they cannot make it up. They will soon be behind and want to stop school—find fault with the teacher, say he or she is partial, etc., when all the time the parent is to blame. Send your boys to school and don't let them grow up as ignorant as a great many are who never had school facilities like our children have.

Rev. E. A. G. Herman of Lisbon, Pa., preached a trial sermon in the

The tenant house of E. C. King, occupied by Mrs. Margery McCleary, burned to the ground yesterday afternoon, and it is not known how the fire originated. It was discovered about 4 o'clock in the afternoon. Mrs. McCleary's goods and clothing were destroyed. A cupboard with dishes and a mattress and a chair or two were all that was saved as Mrs. McCleary was at a neighbor's when the fire was discovered. It is supposed that her son George made too large a fire in the stove. Mrs. McCleary is to be pitied as all her clothing and that of her son was burned, as well as her furniture, beds and bedding. The building was insured. Hooker

November 18—Both the men's and women's adult bible classes of the Brethren Church at this place have voted to adopt the "New Movement" plans of adult bible class work. The men's class has challenged the women's class to a new membership contest which was promptly accepted. John S. Furry, principal of the Riddlesburg schools, has charge of the men's class and H. H. Brumbaugh of the women's class.

Eighteen or twenty of the Sunday School workers of the Methodist and the Brethren Sunday Schools have organized a Teacher Training Class, which meets in the Methodist Church every Wednesday evening, under the leadership of Mr. Furry. We are expecting great things of this class as it is composed of men and women who are interested in the work and whose leader has had the experience of graduating two classes. With the valuable help to be given us by Mr. Lauder and Rev. Colburn we expect to receive much information that does not regularly go with the course. B.

Lesson VIII.—Fourth Quarter, For Nov. 22, 1908.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, 1 Kings i, 32-40, 50-53—Memory Verses, 39, 40—Golden Text, 1 Chron. xxviii, 9—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Copyright, 1908, by American Press Association.] "Whatsoever the Lord pleased, that did He in heaven and in earth, in the seas and all deep places" (Ps. cxxxv, 6). "The Most High ruleth in the kingdom of men and giveth it to whomsoever He will. He doeth according to His will in the army of heaven and among the inhabitants of the earth" (Dan. iv, 32, 35). Even when our Lord was crucified Herod and Pilate and the people of Israel did what the hand and counsel of the Lord determined before to be done (Acts iv, 27, 28). So it is always, through good men and bad men, and even the devil, and through good men who often act unwisely, God is ever working out His eternal purpose which He purposed in Christ Jesus our Lord (Eph. iii, 11). He who sees and declares the end from the beginning says, "My counsel shall stand, and I will do all My pleasure" (Isa. xlii, 10; Ps. xxxiii, 10, 11). Men are left free to do as they choose and are guilty if they do wrong, but God is ever working out His purpose in spite of everything and every one who may be set against Him.

Thus we see it in our lesson today. David being old, one of his sons, Adonijah, whom he had never displeased by even asking him why he did anything, exalted himself to be the king, though he knew that the Lord had given the throne to his brother Solomon, and also Joab, who was David's chief, and Abiathar, the priest, whom David had so protected and made one with him, followed Adonijah (1 Kings i, 5-7; ii, 15). It does not seem so strange that spoiled boys, like Absalom and Adonijah, should be so desperately wicked, but to see a priest like Abiathar joining him is perplexing. It seems so easy to turn from what is right and do the wrong thing.

There were some who remained faithful to David, such as Nathan, the prophet; Zadok, the priest; Benaiah, the son of Jehoiada, one of David's mighty men who slew a lion in a pit in snow time, and also an Egyptian with the man's own spear, and did many mighty acts (II Sam. xlii, 20-23; I Kings i, 8). Nathan told Bathsheba, the mother of Solomon, how things were going, and she and Nathan brought word to David, whereupon David called these three faithful men and bade them cause Solomon to ride upon his own mule and have him anointed king over Israel and Judah, that he might sit upon his throne and be king in his stead (verses 32-35). This was as the Lord had purposed, for He had said to David, "Behold, a son shall be born to thee, who shall be a man of rest, * * * and I will give peace and quietness unto Israel in his days, * * * and I will establish the throne of his kingdom over Israel forever" (I Chron. xxi, 9, 10), a promise primarily, but only partly true of Solomon, but yet to be fully and completely seen in Jesus as the Son of David (Isa. ix, 6, 7; Jer. xxiii, 5, 6; Luke i, 31-33). Then sat Solomon upon the throne of David, his father, and his kingdom was established greatly (I Kings ii, 12), or as it is written in I Chron. xxi, 23, "Then Solomon sat on the throne of the Lord as king instead of David, his father, and prospered, and all Israel obeyed him." No throne but this was ever called the throne of the Lord. The days come when the same city, Jerusalem, shall be called the throne of the Lord and all the nations shall be gathered unto it, to the name of the Lord to Jerusalem (Jer. iii, 17) David's charge to Solomon in chapter ii and in I Chron. xxviii is worthy of being laid up in the heart. Note specially these words: "Know that the God of thy father and serve Him with a perfect heart and with a willing mind, for the Lord searcheth all hearts and understandeth all the imaginations of the thoughts" (I Chron. xxviii, 9).

For over twenty years I have found special blessing in these. That expression, "the imagination of the thoughts," is found again in chapter xxix, 18, and again said contrast in Gen. vi, 5. How deeply God searches not only the heart, but the thoughts of the heart, and somehow, back of that the imagination of the thoughts! How much and how continually we need the precious blood which cleanseth from all sin! In the last chapter of I Sam. we find a word from David in verse 21 which is worthy of application to all believers, "Neither will I offer burnt offerings unto the Lord my God of that which doth cost me nothing." And this was in connection with the purchase of the place where the temple was afterward builded (I Chron. iii, 1). It was also the place where Abraham had offered up his son Isaac, and the great thought is redemption by a costly sacrifice. In David's abundant preparation for the temple which he was not allowed to build we see a manifestation of that zeal which he prayed that Solomon might have. He said, "I have prepared with all my might for the house of my God, * * * because I have set my affection to the house of my God." Yet with all the millions which he gave he said, "All things come of Thee, and of Thine own have we given Thee" (I Chron. xxix, 2, 5, 14).

This is the trade-mark of Scott's Emulsion and is on every bottle of it sold in the world—which amounts to several millions yearly. Why—Because it has made so many sickly children strong and well—given health and rosy cheeks to so many pale, anaemic girls and restored to health so many thousands in the first stages of Consumption.

SCARLET FEVER.

A Scourge of White Races in All Ages and Countries.

Now that smallpox, thanks to compulsory vaccination, has become a rarity in civilized communities, scarlet fever steps forward as the worst of the eruptive diseases of childhood. It is a malady of enormous antiquity. Thucydides, writing nearly 500 years before the beginning of our era, called it a heritage from the remote past. It has scourged the white races in all ages and all countries, and the physicians of all schools have leveled their heaviest artillery upon it. Yet it remains a puzzle unsolved and an enemy unconquered even today. We are in doubt as to its cause, and there is no drug or antitoxin that will cure it. But despite all this the death rate from scarlet fever is steadily declining, and we may expect it to decline more and more as the years go by. The reason for this, I take it, lies in the fact that the modern doctor is a great deal more sparing with pills and powders than his predecessor and a great deal more lavish with water, air and antiseptics. In the old days it was customary to dose scarlet fever patients with all sorts of violent remedies in staggering quantities, and as a result many of them died. Today medicines are but minor auxiliaries in the sickroom, and both doctor and nurse devote their main energies to preventing a spread of the infection.—Delineator.

ARCTIC TEMPERATURES.

Zero Weather is Regarded as Mild and Agreeable.

According to eminent arctic explorers, physical sensations are relative, and the mere enumeration of so many degrees of heat or cold gives no idea of their effect upon the system.

One explorer states that he should have frozen at home in England in a temperature that he found very comfortable indeed in Lapland, with his solid diet of meat and butter and his garments of reindeer.

The following is a correct scale of the physical effects of cold, calculated for the latitude of 65 to 70 degrees north:

Fifteen degrees above zero—unpleasantly warm.

Zero—mild and agreeable.

Ten degrees below zero—pleasantly fresh and bracing.

Twenty degrees below zero—sharp, but not severely cold. One must keep one's fingers and toes in motion and rub one's nose occasionally.

Thirty degrees below zero—very cold. Particular care must be taken of the nose and extremities. Plenty of the fattest food must be eaten.

Forty degrees below zero—intensely cold. One must keep awake at all hazards, muffle up to the eyes and test the circulation frequently, that it may not stop somewhere before one knows it.

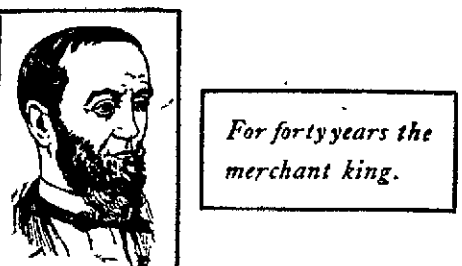

Fifty degrees below zero—a struggle for life.—Chicago Record-Herald.

TWO MINUTE SKETCHES

Alexander T. Stewart.

By ROBERTUS LOVE.

A. T. STEWART was not a merchant prince. He was the merchant king. For forty years he reigned with undisputed title. He was the greatest and most famous merchant of his time in the entire world. He built up the first really great retail store and wholesale establishment in America. His retail house was the largest in the world at the time. His name was powerful abroad, and throughout the United States it was a household word, spoken with awe and wonder. Old men of today recall the name of A. T. Stewart as an inspiration to business ambition in their youth. Men in early middle life remember that the same name was more familiar to them than that of any other business man when they were small boys.

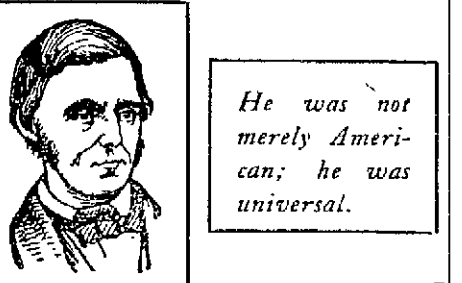

Mr. Stewart died thirty-one years ago, leaving no children. His widow died ten years later. The magnificent marble mansion in which he lived on Fifth avenue, New York, has been razed and replaced by a commercial structure. Eleven years ago his successors in the great store on Broadway assigned, and the Stewart store building is now a Wanamaker establishment. Even the body of Stewart was stolen from its vault in New York, and there is still a dispute as to whether it ever was recovered. The Stewart name and business and fortune all have disappeared, but his fame lives.

A. T. Stewart was a Scotch-Irishman, born in Ireland and educated at Dublin university. He was a classical scholar, devoted to books in his early life and with no idea of entering trade. When he came to America, at the age of twenty, in 1823, he became a teacher in New York. Two years later he returned to Ireland to claim a legacy of about $5,000, and upon the advice of a friend in New York he bought in Dublin a stock of lace and other goods, which he brought back to America with him. He opened a small shop, advertised his wares and sold the goods at an enormous profit. This success revolutionized Stewart. He devoted his life to trade.

At the outset Stewart made up his mind as to his course in business. He determined to be perfectly honest, never to misrepresent his goods, always to watch every nook and corner of his business and to add more customers by pleasing those he got. It was his boast in old age that in all his career he never permitted a willful misrepresentation to be made in his store.

Ralph Waldo Emerson.

By ROBERTUS LOVE.

EMERSON was pure intellect. Though he lived in America during the nineteenth century for nearly eighty years, he was not materially influenced by the surroundings and the events of his time and country. He dwelt in his own world of mental contemplation. From time to time during his long life he gave to the world the fruits of those contemplations in lectures, essays and poems. But so far as externals go any of his essays or poems might have been written in any other age or in any other country. He was not merely American; he was universal.

Perhaps no writer ever lived the sum of whose literary work is so devoid of vulgarity. All of the Emersonian output is simply thought refined to the uttermost. There is no humor save in the way of sarcasm, and the sarcasm is lofty and benevolent.

Emerson was a supreme idealist. He never climbed toward ideals nor groped in the dark after ideals, for he was the exponent of ideals already attained. The great commercial world ragged around him, but he held aloof, content to live simply and frugally, rich in his own wisdom.

The great lesson of Emerson's life and teachings lies in his conception of the inherent nobility of the human soul. He repudiated utterly and with calm scorn the age worn conception of man as a sinful and filthy maggot crawling about the earth asking alms of a superior divinity. The godliness residing in humanity, the inherent possibilities of the human, the inevitable evolution of the soul of man from lower to higher, the divine dignity of life upon earth—these things Emerson believed and felt and taught for more than fifty years.

The Importance of Proper Eye Glasses and Spectacles

The fitting should be carefully done and the cost ought not be great. The eyes of many men and women have been seriously injured, in many cases permanently, by wearing glasses not suited to their eyes. Then again the cost to the wearer is usually many times greater than necessary.

J. W. Ridenour, Jeweler and Optician, located for many years in Ridenour Block, Bedford, Pa., is a Graduate Optician and will attend to your eye wants at small cost.

SMART CUTAWAY COAT.

THE good appearance of a garment depends as much on the cutting and making as on the style selected. And perhaps the tailored suit is the most difficult to make of any. However, if one goes about it the right way it can be accomplished in a satisfactory manner. The design illustrated is one of the most popular and becoming models that have been shown this season. The coat being gored to the shoulders both front and back gives long, graceful lines to the figure, and it can be made to fit perfectly over the bust in front. Many coats without the shoulder gores cannot be made to fit nicely without a dart at the neck, especially on stout people, and this spoils the appearance of the jacket.

Padded forms can be bought at any large department store for a small amount. They are made of crinoline and perfectly graded. By the use of these forms the home dressmaker will have no difficulty in making the garment appear neat and tailor made. Serge with a border of Scotch plaid as well as dark blue with a black-satin border is shown among the novelty suitings for the early fall. Cheviots with novel borders and in some cases fringed and wide wale diagonal weaves are also seen, but the high luster broadcloth in both plain and fancy designs holds first place. Although novelties are shown in all materials, plain colors are more popular, and the dark colors are shown for tailored suits. Brown and gray, bronze green and wistaria blue as well as black are the colors most seen, but a feature of the season is that all materials are in quiet tones.

A costume of smoke gray with black braid trimmings, with the jacket made after design illustrated, and the skirt in one of the new gored models would make a particularly attractive suit for the fall season. The notched collar can be faced with black satin, as well as the cuffs, or if a touch of color is preferred cretonne in pretty, harmonious colors would be effective. The pattern for this coat is cut in seven sizes—from 32 to 44 inches bust measure. To copy this garment for the average person it requires 2 1/2 yards of material 44 inches wide or 2 1/2 yards 50 inches wide.

Any reader of this paper who desires to secure this pattern may do so by sending 10 cents to this office. Give the number, 4051, state size desired and write the full address plainly. The pattern will be forwarded promptly by mail.

Silver Dollar Doomed Treasury officials note that silver dollars are gradually going out of use in the west and the south, and that their place is being taken by dollar bills. A few years ago it was a rare thing to see a dollar bill west of the Mississippi River, while in the south silver dollars were far more plentiful than the soft money. It seems that the doom of the silver dollar was sounded when the government decided that it would no longer pay the freight between sub-treasuries and banks on the coins.—Savannah News.

FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE

Woman's World

MISS ETHEL'S DEBUT.

Daughter of President to Be National Belle For a Few Months.

Time was when the debut of the daughter of the president of the United States would have been relegated to the category of unimportant affairs concerning only the United States. Now a thrill of interest is felt in every country of the world. Though the occasion calls for nothing except letters of congratulation and probably a few gifts from personal friends who are high in the cabinets of foreign lands, the event will be noted in courts and will figure in the chronicles of foreign capitals along with the doings of royalty.

The slender young girl who stands so luminously before the world just now is a type of which every American may be proud. She is just seventeen and a few months and is young for debutantes as the buds are introduced nowadays. But the delight of reigning a short while as national belle was too alluring for even such a level-headed young woman as Miss Ethel to forego. She possesses the healthy desire of all girls to have a good time, and certainly a debut in the White House offers a tempting field of operation. Last year she decided against a collegiate course, and after finishing her academic training at the Cathedral school she devoted all her attention to the accomplishments necessary for the belle who would shine in such a complex assembly as Washington's official society.

She is a good musician, a clever conversationalist, clever with her brush and pen and can "make conversation" in three tongues besides English.

MISS ETHEL ROOSEVELT.

"Unlike Mrs. Longworth, Miss Ethel is fond of books, and she has gathered a fine library during her years in the White House. Books are the most welcome gift that can be offered, and, as her friends have learned this, she has added largely to her treasures. Her skill as a needlewoman is almost national, and her pretty little fancy articles have figured in church festivals and gentlewomen's sales for the past five years.

That Miss Ethel Roosevelt is a handsome, well equipped young girl, who would make her mark in the social world even without the prestige of a White House environment is universally conceded. Interest centers in the plan for her debut party, and great is the longing of every one socially inclined, young, old and middle aged, to be included in the guest list on that occasion. For some reason social experts have decided that, as Miss Alice Roosevelt was presented at a ball, so the second daughter must expect the same brilliant fate. But conditions differ widely from those when Mrs. Longworth made her bow. Mrs. Roosevelt was comparatively new to her high position, and her circle of friends was more circumscribed. Then, Mrs. Longworth possessed much independence of character as well as an income of her own to execute her own plans. Miss Ethel is more amenable, and the wishes of her parents have always been paramount. A ball seems the proper function, but people shudder at the Pandora box of ills which could spring from such an entertainment. Mrs. Roosevelt has hitherto displayed married independence when it comes to planning her private amenities. She has drawn a rigid line between the obligations of the president's wife and those of Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt.

Original Sin Out of Date.

It is doubtful if there ever was a time when people were more impressed with the idea of personality than they are today. In novels and in plays, as well as in real life, it no longer interests us to know what people do. We want to know what they are. Even in the nursery the personality of a child is not only recognized, but deferred to, a fact deplored by a woman of the old school, who indignantly exclaimed: "Personality, indeed! In my young days it was called 'original sin' and whipped out of a child." Far, however, from adopting these drastic measures, the modern parent, realizing the importance of individuality, instead of repressing it in her children, cultivates it. She knows that if they are to count for anything in life they must not only be themselves, but they must mean something. The reason of so many people's dullness lies in the fact that they mean nothing.

They have no purpose in life, and, going blind and dumb through the world, they leave off every evening no wiser than they were in the morning. To be redeemed from such commonplace only one thing is necessary—namely, personality. Whatever we are it is better to be ourselves than to be an imitation or an echo of somebody else, and only by making the most of ourselves can we hope to make anything of life. Most people's lives are failures not so much because destiny has been unkind to them, but because they have not known how to make the best of themselves, mentally or physically. Instead of developing their instincts they have neglected it, if they have not actually crushed it out of existence. And, instinct being the basis of personality, they drift helplessly, as the result of its repression, on the tide of events which they can neither conquer nor control.

In our present state of artificial civilization it is, of course, the custom to assume that our instinct must necessarily be wrong. Like everything else that is natural, we are brought up to mistrust it. "Second thoughts are best" is a maxim instilled into us in childhood, and instead of relying upon the prompt and usually unerring decisions of our instinct we are taught to refer all perplexities to the calm and inspired arbitration of our reason. In all strong personalities, however, instinct, far from being suppressed, acts in complete accord with reason.

Make Haste Slowly.

This is an age of hurry, and we are all inclined to do everything in a rush, forgetting that hurry retards our work, and the more quietly we do what is to be done the more quickly and better it is done.

"Hasten slowly" is the advice given in an exchange, for the first necessity is to find ourselves out—to find out for a fact where and how we hurry and how we have the sense of hurry with us all the time. Having found ourselves out, the remedy is straight before us.

Nature is on the side of no hurry and will come to our aid with higher standards of quiet which are always back in every one's brain if we only look to find them.

Five minutes sitting quietly and taking long breaths to get a sense of no hurry every day will be of very great help, and then when we find ourselves hurrying let us stop and recall the best quiet that we know. That need only take a few seconds, and the gain is sure to follow.

Festina lente (hasten slowly) should be in the back of our brain all day and every day.

"Tis haste makes waste, the sage avers, And instances are far too plenty. Where'er the hasty impulse stirs Put on the brake, Festina Lente.

A Very Dainty Whim.

Queen Victoria of Spain is credited with having set the "rose fashion," as she has adopted the rose for her favorite flower, and the popular scent is therefore the delicious odor of roses.

There are hundreds of girls in Paris now making up silken roses, which will afterward be perfumed and worn by the women of fashion. One kind of rose almost approaches silver in tone and is made of sherry pale pink satin stuffed in its heart with a soft sachet powder.

Wreaths of white roses are worn by the debutante, consisting of a dozen little button roses wired together and made of chiffon or silk. These are almost scented by lying in a box in which a sachet has been placed.

The scented pink rose is pinned at the side of the throat. It should nestle in a bed of silver tulle or of silver chiffon and is sprinkled with real attar on its petals.

Paper Shade Hint.

Some women are so fearful of fire that they hesitate to use the dainty paper lamp shades that are so cheap and lend such a soft radiance to a room. There is really little danger if the wire frames are large enough for the lamp. Do not use shades, however, after the paper becomes dry and charred, as they are then more liable to ignite. Another important thing in regard to paper shades is to keep them free from dust. Not only do they burn sooner when dusty, but they are not a credit to one's housekeeping. The tops should be changed frequently, as the paper costs but little, and it is not much work to make a new top when the frame is there.

To Polish Mirrors.

The first step toward cleaning the mirror before polishing is to rub off the glass carefully with a damp cloth. When this is done, polish with a woolen cloth on which some powdered blue has been shaken. For the final touch, rub the glass carefully with a chamomile skin until it is brilliant.

American Plates.

The woman who is intensely American and patriotic can now get china to carry out her feelings. The shops have put out emblem plates with the arms of the thirteen original states. These would be attractive used for a supper or dinner on the Fourth of July or Washington's birthday.

Water Bugs.

Water pipes are frequently stopped up with water bugs. These pests can be got rid of by pouring a tablespoonful of turpentine down the pipe. The mouth of the pipe should be covered to keep in the fumes.

Of Interest To Women.

To such women as are not seriously out of health, but who have exacting duties to perform, either in the way of household cares or in social duties and functions, which seriously tax their strength, as well as to nursing mothers, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has proved a most valuable supporting tonic and invigorating nerve. By its timely use, much serious sickness and suffering may be avoided. The operating table and the surgeon's knife would, it is believed, seldom have to be employed if this most valuable woman's remedy were resorted to in good time. The "Favorite Prescription" has proven a great boon to expectant mothers by preparing the system for the coming of baby, thereby rendering childbirth safe, easy, and almost painless.

Bear in mind, please that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is not a secret or patent medicine, against which the most intelligent people are quite naturally averse, because of the uncertainty as to their composition and harmless character, but is a medicine of known composition, a full list of all its ingredients being printed, in plain English, on every bottle wrapper. An examination of this list of ingredients will disclose the fact that it is non-alcoholic in its composition, chemically pure, triple-refined glycerine taking the place of the commonly used alcohol, in its make-up. In this connection it may not be out of place to state that the "Favorite Prescription" of Dr. Pierce is the only medicine put up for the cure of woman's peculiar weaknesses and ailments, and sold through druggists, all the time, which have the unqualified endorsement of all the leading medical writers and teachers of all the several schools of practice, and that too as remedies for the ailments for which "Favorite Prescription" is recommended. A little book of these endorsements will be sent to any address, postpaid, and absolutely free if you request same by postal card, or letter, of Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation. Constipation is the cause of many diseases. Cure the cause and you cure the disease. Easy to take as candy.

Got the Best of Carlyle.

The Rev. Thomas Alexander, a Presbyterian minister, long resident in Chelsea and well known as a brother Scot, was most anxious to know Carlyle, but had no opportunity of getting an introduction to him. One day in the King's road he saw Carlyle coming in his direction and took advantage of the opportunity by going up to the sage and saying, "Thomas Carlyle, I believe?" Carlyle's reply was, "Tom Alexander, I know!" They became good friends, and later Mr. Alexander wrote to Carlyle for a subscription toward a school building fund, and Carlyle wrote back a refusal in doggerel, whereupon Mr. Alexander replied that if he did not send him £5 he would sell his poetry to a collector or publish it. The £5 was at once forthcoming.

Hopeless.

Martha, endeavoring to instruct a would-be housekeeper in the mysteries of pudding making, was overheard. "Yer jes' takes some bread en"— "But how much bread, Martha?" "Oh, jes' what yer needs, Miss Min. en den yer puts yo' milk on it"— "And how much milk, Martha?" "Well, yer mus' use yer judgment 'bout dat, Miss Min." "But I haven't any judgment, Martha." "Well, de Lord he'll yer, Miss Min. 'cause I can't."—Travel Magazine.

USE FOR A TELESCOPE.

Interesting Discovery One Woman Made by Use of the Glass.

"I thought it was a pretty fair sort of telescope for one that wasn't very big," said Uncle Silas. "I rigged it up in the attic by the high north window and had it fixed so it would swing around easy. I took a deal of satisfaction in looking through it, the sky seemed so wide and full of wonders, so when Hester was here I thought I'd give her the pleasure too. She stayed a long time upstairs and seemed to be enjoying it. When she came down I asked her if she'd discovered anything new."

"Yes," she says. "Why, it made everybody's house seem so near that I seemed to be right beside 'em, and I found out what John Pritchard's folks are doin' in their outkitchen. I've wondered what they had a light there for night after night, and I just turned the glass on their windows. They are cuttin' apples to dry—folks as rich as them cuttin' apples!" "And actually that was all the woman had seen! With the whole heavens before her to study, she had spent her time prying into the affairs of her neighbors! And there are lots more like her—with and without telescopes."—Christian Uplook.

SURFACING OF ROADS

An Excellent Foundation is a Prime Necessity.

MUST BE FREE FROM WATER

Provision Should Be Made For Thorough Drainage—How to Roll the Foundation—Materials to Use For Surfacing Rural Highways.

Before a finishing surface of any material is applied to a road all the preliminary work should be completed. The road should have been graded, drains provided and the road made safe by proper guard rails. With all this done, the dirt road is a foundation for the different materials that may be put upon it.

For country roads there need be considered only pavements that are put on in small fragments. The materials most commonly used are gravel and broken stone. Oyster shells and slag from iron furnaces are oftentimes employed in localities where these materials are at hand, while under certain conditions, when no other materials could be obtained, burnt clay has proved serviceable. The object of a pavement is to furnish a wearing surface for the road and a protection for the foundation from water and consequent softening. It is in reality a roof.

When dry, all but the very sandy soils are firm enough to support the weight of wagons of all kinds, but when wet little support is furnished. It is well known that sand when confined will stand any pressure that can be put upon it. Thus if a sandy roadbed is covered with a surfacing material which will hold the sand in place an excellent foundation is obtained. While a surfacing material is designed to take the wear, it is the foundation that must resist the pressure, and any road which is constructed without giving due attention to the foundation is wrong from the start and never will be a good road until the defect is remedied. To prepare a natural roadbed for surfacing material it is necessary to bring it to a proper grade and to conform its cross section with that of the finished surface—that is, no surfacing should be put upon a roadbed which is flat or, as is oftentimes the case, lower in the middle than at the sides. In such instances the proper shape should be given to the roadbed by filling in with such material as is necessary and then rolling the whole until it becomes firm and unyielding.

During the course of construction of a roadbed, if there are places that have a wet, springy subsoil, they must be drained and every precaution taken to make the foundation of the road dry. The pavement will keep water from going through from the top, but it will not keep water from percolating into the foundation from springs at the sides or underneath. Therefore where there is danger of water getting to the foundation from the sides or from below it must be cut off either by side drains or by drains directly underneath the road itself. Where the soil is too light, gravelly or sandy earth should be carted in to take its place.

With the roadbed brought up to grade and provision made for thorough drainage it is then compacted by rolling either by horse or steam power. In the rolling of the foundation perhaps quite as good results can be obtained with a horse roller as with a steam roller, and in some loose soils much less difficulty will be experienced although more rolling will be required to compact the earth as firmly as by the heavier steam roller. This is a part of the work that is too often slighted and is the cause of depressions subsequently appearing in the finished road. The rolling of the foundation will bring out the weaker places, where there will be a settling. The depressions should be filled and brought to an even surface with gravel if it is at hand. It is cheaper to even up depressions by rolling the foundation than by attempting to smooth the finished surface with additional broken stone. When the foundation has been rolled and all unevenness has disappeared it is then ready to receive the surfacing.

It oftentimes happens when grading a particular piece of road preparatory to surfacing it with broken stone that it is necessary to do considerable heavy filling. In such instances it may be advisable to delay the laying of macadam for some time in order to give the embankments time to settle, for it is impossible to construct an embankment of earth more than a few feet in height without having subsequent settlement. If this settling took place evenly all along the embankment, no particular harm would be done to the surfacing laid upon it, but owing to the difference in the soils composing embankments and also the way the earth is dumped there is always a tendency for some parts to settle more than others.

If there arise circumstances making it impracticable to wait for the embankment to "season," every precaution should be taken in its formation to guard against uneven settling. This can be done by spreading the earth in successive layers of about a foot in thickness, which are rolled or tamped as solid as possible. Another advantage in delaying the surfacing of a newly graded road is that a chance is given to observe the action under frost of certain sections and so provide additional underdrain, which if omitted might have caused a failure in that portion of the macadam.

Our town will have a series of entertainments during the winter months, beginning November 27, with the Maude Willis Company. These entertainments, five in number, are furnished by the Harrisburg Lyceum Bureau. The entertainments promise to be fine and of educational trend. We would like to see as many of our people as can take advantage of this rare opportunity. The proceeds of the entertainments will go to the seating of our high school auditorium, which will hold 200 chairs. For this reason the cause should be patronized, and it is to be hoped that it will as these entertainments cost quite a sum of money.

Thomas Leonard and family were made happy last Saturday by the return of Mrs. Leonard, who had been on a visit with friends and relatives in and about McKeesport for the last two months.

Arthur Huffer, one of our promising young men, is finishing the Madley school where the former teacher was shamefully treated by her scholars. It would be the writer's pleasure to have the same pupils try the same treatment on Mr. Huffer, and see the results.

HER HOUSE IN ORDER.

China Closet the Pride of Up to Date Housekeeper's Heart.

One of the first things that the housekeeper to be thinks of when she has finished ascertaining the bare necessities of the household life is the china closet and its contents.

Few are the women who do not pride themselves on their china closet. Well arranged and full of handsome wares, it ranks among the best ornaments in the house. But a common trouble is that each meal finds it depleted for the table and the harmony of its arrangement destroyed. Now, silver of any sort has no standing in the china closet. It should be kept in separate boxes in the buffet drawer, and purely ornamental objects of silver, silver-gilt and cut glass ought to be confined to the buffet, for properly the china closet holds only china, glass and heavier clay wares.

In at least half the houses it is built into the wall. This disposes of location. But it is imperative to have good shelves and plenty of them. Sometimes it is possible to make the very high shelves answer by screwing hooks on the under sides and hanging there cups, mugs and little pitchers. Hang the saucers against the wall back of the cup by means of flat wire china racks. There may be a double or even a treble row of the racks. In filling them study colors as much as possible. With saucers put the biggest at the bottom unless this arrangement disturbs the color scheme. Leave the shelf surfaces plain and cover them with heavy linen cut to fit and ornamented with a line of drawn work. Heavy butchers' linen is best, and a pad of the same will safeguard the glassware shelf.

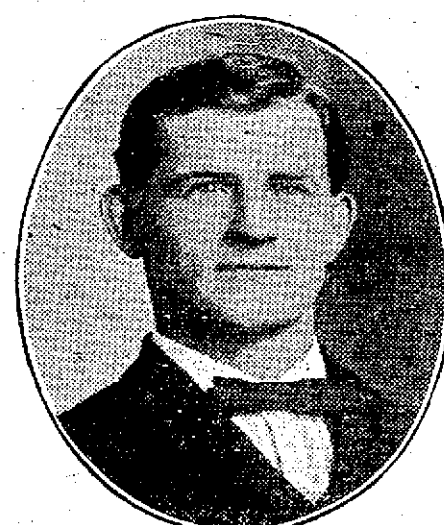

Claret jugs can be hung from the shelves. A corner position is best for them. Salvers and other flat things may go in racks at the back. In that case the shelf needs a padded linen at the back, like the shelf proper. Test hanging things by swinging them, so as to make certain they will not strike anything else.

Keep plates carefully sorted and piled, size and pattern together. Give big platters room on the lowermost shelf. If it is not properly grooved for them tack strips of lath along it and cut the linen for it wide enough to go in and out. Stand the platters on edge, the biggest next the wall, graduating them toward the front. With a very high shelf space they look prettier on end, the highest in the middle and getting smaller toward the sides.

Make the most of every good bit and set in a row in front of the flat ones.
